

This material is part of a collection that documents the harassment, discrimination, and retaliation perpetrated against Alaska's women research scientists by their supervisor, with full knowledge (and arguably, "tacit approval") of their federal employer, the USDA Agricultural Research Service (ARS)

Peter,
I'm assuming that you already received the agenda from ARS's aquaculture trip. Sounds like all the guys had a good time on their Anchorage and Juneau visits.

It would have been nice if Alberto had filled me in on this himself, but I'm sure his reasons for excluding me from all information were important to his professional (and personal) agenda.

Apparently Knipling et al have decided that he is the best supervisor for me that ARS can provide, (which is a glaringly sad commentary on the status of supervisors in the ARS...)

Could you please shunt important project information to you as it arrives so that Alberto can't completely destroy my career in the coming year?

See you at the conference.

CKB

Hello Cindy,

Here's a recap of the Juneau EDC meeting we discussed at Comfish.

The ARS people referred to your work. This was more of them looking to get people thinking of ideas to work on than anything that I think would displace or lessen the importance of your work (from my perspective at least).
